George Harlow left the city last evening for Concord, N. H., where he will remain with relatives until after the holidays.

"Jewel" at the Bijou to-day. The Lyric theatre of Nebraska says of "Jewel": "You can have Billy Sunday preach till doomsday and he will never leave the impression that this silent drama leaves."—adv.

In Barre city court yesterday Magistrate H. W. Scott granted a continuance in the case of Harvey Hargreave vs. W. J. McNeil, an action growing out of a justice ejectment suit involving, it is said, around a piece of property occupied by the defendant as a tenant in Maple Grove. The plaintiff, Mr. Hargreave, is represented by E. R. Davis and the defendant's appearance, as entered on the court records, is Rufus E. Brown of Burlington.

In connection with the municipal Christmas tree erected in City square for the Yuletide season, the committee issued the following statement this morning: "Although some things have been done freely, there are, nevertheless, several rather noticeable items of expense attached to the community tree. Chief among these is the charge for wiring and electric bulbs, which will be supplied at cost by Frank Nichols and the Barre Electric Co. The Consolidated Lighting company furnishes the electricity gratis. Through an error one of our statements in The Times recently had it that everything was to be supplied gratis."

A traveling salesman whose visits to Barre each year cannot be reckoned on the fingers of two hands is authority for the statement that merchants in this city are far and away ahead of mercantile men in other cities in the matter of attractive Christmas decorations for their stores. In speaking of his observations in New England cities, with special reference to Vermont towns, the salesman made some very interesting comparisons of the window decorations in Barre stores and the efforts of merchants along that line in some other cities that he chose to mention. His opinion on the subject of Yuletide preparation reflected in a way altogether creditable to the merchants of Barre and their enterprise in straining stores and windows.
